ABSTRACT

An Internet client communicates with an Internet server such as an HTTP server or SMTP server through a TCP streaming socket on the Internet device with the Internet client. The TCP streaming sockets can be established 5   through an Internet ready command line interface. The Internet ready command line interface includes "IR" commands that can establish, resume, release and terminate TCP sockets.

47